"This, of course, is not possible now; but the unconstitutional, dishonest manner in which he has thrown the SWP and SLP off the ballot is a step along the path because of its damaging precedents for the right of a free ballot and free elections. For this reason, all those who believe in defending the right to vote should aid the minority parties in the fight to regain their hardearned place on the N.Y. ballot."

In Michigan, too, the SWP is waging a fight over the right to vote freely. It will test in the courts the legality of a recent ruling by the Michigan Secretary of State banning write-in votes for President and Vice-President. (See statement of Rita Shaw.

Here are some facts about what is happening to the free ballot in New York. A few days ago the candidates of the Socialist Workers Party and the Socialst Labor Party were ordered off the ballot by Secretary of State, Carmine DeSapio.

DeSapio is head of Tammany Hall and of the Democratic Party in this state. He will go down in history as the short-ballot artist — the one who gave New York its worst mutilated presidential ballot in history. Since 1888 there have been socialist parties on every presidential ballot in this state. But in 1956 they have been dishonestly barred. Surely this is a blow to the right of free elections and a free ballot.

Here is why the Socialist Workers Party was thrown off the New York ballot. Not only the presidential but the senatorial election in New York is expected to be very close. The Democratic machine fears that a protest vote ple to vote. But they stop at ballot this year. So he arbitragoing to minority parties could lose the election. The second reason is that the American Labor Party has just gone out of existence. How will the former ALP'ers vote? In a close election DeSapio knows they friends of the Socialist Workers vote for candidates of their own could be the margin of victory. 1. Tito-Khrushchev Meetings

Khrushchev's visit to Tito's Adriatic headquarters on the Island of Brioni, followed by Tito's return visit to Khrushchev's Yalta resort on the Black Sea, for a total of 16 days of conferences, has aroused a sensation in the world capitalist press. Speculation and rumor are rife regarding the meaning of these unprecedented talks which have been officially described as "vacations."

In the welter of reports, guesses and counter-guesses one salient fact emerges: the main clue to what the Kremlin tops are talking about with Tito and other East European government heads is not to be found at the vacation resorts of either the Black Sea or the Adriatic but in the courtroom of Poznan, an industrial town in Poland, where participants in the June 28 general-strike uprising are now

We have no way of judging the accuracy of current reports on the exact lineup within the Kremlin and the precise role Tito is playing in these internal struggles. Nor is this necessary for understanding the major factors underlying the crisis of the Soviet bureaucracy. An abundant and verified body of evidence already exists to enable us to arrive at such an understanding.

The first fundamental factor in the crisis is the revolutionary ferment among the industrial workers of the Soviet orbit. In the long run this ferment spells the doom of the bureaucratic caste in the Soviet Union and the restoration of Soviet democracy through the revolutionary action of the Soviet masses.

For over three decades the rule of the privileged bureaucracy was maintained. through the violent destruction of the institutions of workers' democracy: the Bolshevik party, the Soviets and the trade old, were convicted October 4 unions. Now the Russian revolution is of attacking a security policeexperiencing a rebirth. The Soviet masses man who was killed in the June are preparing to overthrow the bureaucratic usurpers.

The first major sign that a gigantic mass force was coming to life within if one remembers the original the Soviet orbit was the East German charge that the demonstrations general-strike uprising on June 17, 1953. were the work of "imperialist On the heels of the East German uprising remembers that the three were a deep crisis developed within the cama- indicted for "murder," The court, rilla of Stalin's heirs in the Kremlin; the it is clear, was afraid to incite head of the secret police, Beria, and all mass indignation by imposing who were closely associated with him were heavier punishment.

Unquestionably the general-strike and that resistance to their bureau- with pistol and rifle. uprising of the Poznan workers last June has again shaken the Soviet bureaucracy to its foundations. Poznan has produced another spasm of internal struggle within the ruling group over the question of how to cope with the revolutionary threat. Have Bulganin and Khrushchev gone too far in permitting "democratization?" Has rendering Tito legitimate loosened the grip of the Kremlin upon the East European regimes? Which will do more to save the regime: concessions or repressions? These are the questions before the Soviet bureaucratic chiefs.

What is most alarming to the Kremlin about Poznan is the inability of the Polish government to follow through after its first moves to engage in ruthless frame-ups and repressions. Instead, the carefully prepared trials are turning into a political forum in which the crimes of the bureaucratic caste are being exposed. And sections of the Polish bureaucracy itself manifest a susceptibility to mass

2. Bureaucrats in Crisis

The Poznan uprising, then, is the immediate cause of the current feverish activity and inner struggles among the Kremlin and East European rulers.

The crisis within the Soviet bureaucracy is deep and irreversible. The broadest basis for it was laid by the expansion of the Soviet orbit following World War II. Even before Stalin died the main outlines of this crisis were clearly visible.

The victory of the Chinese revolution in 1949 introduced a profound cleavage within the world Stalinist monolith. The very taking of power by the Chinese Communist Party was accomplished in conflict with the Kremlin and against the express wishes of Stalin himself. Stalin wanted the Chinese Communists to form a coalition government with the foreign imperialist underling, Chiang Kai-shek. But the laws of the permanent revolution were more powerful than Stalin's classcollaboration blueprints. A coalition with the Chinese bourgeoisie couldn't solve the basic problems of the Chinese revolution: the liberation of the peasant from the exploitation of the landlord-capitalist combination and the liberation of China from foreign imperialist domination. Swept along by a great social upheaval of the Chinese toilers the Communist Party entered the cities and drove Chiang Kaishek off the mainland. The expropriation of the economic and political power of the feeble Chinese capitalist class became inevitable.

With the new power of a Chinese workers' state on the arena, the world structure of Stalinism suffered a profound alteration. There were now two major power centers within the Soviet world orbit.

of Forces 3. World Line-Up

Thus we see that the crisis within the Soviet bureaucracy has a twofold character: the shattering of its world monolithic structure on the one hand, and the differentiation of various strata of the bureaucracy in the face of rising mass struggles on the other. Both aspects of the crisis stem from the same fundamental process — the extension of the world anti-capitalist revolutionary movement of the working masses - including the revolutionary ferment of the workers within the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

The U.S. Big Business policy makers are keenly interested in the crisis of the Soviet bureaucracy. The same factors that caused the crisis of Stalinism have prevented them from going through with their plans for a war against the Soviet Union and the conquest of China for imperialism. Despite their demagogic declarations they see nothing profitable to capitalism in such revolutionary uprisings as occurred in East Germany in 1953 and in Poland in 1956.

The Chinese CP regime, although suffering bureaucratic deformations at birth, now became a rival pole of attraction to the Kremlin for the revolutionary masses

A similar process took place in Eastern Europe. Yugoslavia - where the Communist Party carried through a mass revolution and not a bureaucratic-military, Kremlin-manipulated overturn, as in the rule of the Kremlin. This conflict took open form because Stalin imagined he could crush the Yugoslavs with "one blow."

The restoration last year of "normal relations" between Tito and Khrushchev-Bulganin did not signify a genuine easing of the conflict. Another indication of the bureaucracy's uncertainty and fear of the mass reaction to their system of "justice" is the postponement of four new trials that were scheduled to begin this week. Two and a half years ago, the Bradens bought a house in a lily-white suburb of Louisville for resale to Andrew Wade IV, a young Negro veteran seeking a decent home for his family.

When the Wades moved in, Klan-type violence erupted and culminated in the dynamiting of their home. Local and state authorities sprang into action - not against the racists who committed the crime - but against the Bradens and other decent whites who had come forward to defend the Wade home. The state charged them with exploding the dynamite and never apprehended the real criminals. Knowing that they could not make the dynamite accusation stick, but determined to victimize these champions of Negro rights, the state also indicted them under an ancient "sedition" statute.

Carl Braden was convicted in Dec. 1954, but his conviction was reversed recently following a U.S. Supreme Court decision nullifying the frame-up conviction of Communist Party leader Steve Nelson under a Pennsylvania "sedition" statute. (The high court ruled that all such state laws are unconstitutional.) Now, according to their letter, which we publish on this page, the Louisville defendants seek to win dismissal of charges against the others.

With the prospect of final victory in sight for the Louisville defendants, we again salute them for their magnificent battle. They struck a pioneering blow against Jim Crow and then by their defense against the "sedition" charge helped to preserve civil liberties for all.

An isolated band of individuals under heavy fire, the Louisville defendants appealed for aid to every group with a stake in civil rights and civil liberties. But they refused to buy this aid with red-baiting statements such as a number of figures in the labor and Negro movements wanted as proof of their innocence of "subversion." Sticking stubbornly to the issues, they broke through to win the support of important sectors of the labor, liberal, Negro and radical movements. Of special importance to them in this was the work of the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee, the non-partisan defense group which was the first to come to their aid and publicize their case.

While labor as a whole failed to extend support, help did come from the United Packing House Workers, The United Electrical Workers, the Michigan CIO Council and many local union bodies. Significantly, the principled course pursued by the Louisville defendants won backing from most of the radical tendencies, including the Socialist, Communist and Socialist Workers Party. Such solidarity in action—which in recent years was achieved only in the Kutcher case - adds much | the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that time. However, there apto the fight to preserve the Bill of Rights.

The Louisville freedom fighters declare their intention to remain in the South "where there is still much to be done" in the battle against Jim Crow. We are confident they will do all they promise, and we pledge our continued support in these endeavors.

Another heartening development must be mentioned. On Sept 10, 1956, both Louisville and Jefferson County desegregated their schools without incident. The actual amount of integration was disappointing to some, for the school board had encouraged white parents to transfer children out of previously all-Negro schools and Negro parents to transfer children out of previously all-white schools. But despite this, there are numerous mixed classes in both elementary and high schools. It was a real step forward for this city on the edge of Mason and Dixon's Line.

Many people believe that the smoothness with which this was accomplished was at least partly due to the lessons learned in Louisville as a result of the violence against the Wades. You will recall that the original Supreme Court decision on school segregation was handed down in May, 1954, just as the Wades took possession of their house and it was dynamited shortly thereafter.

30-FOR-40 DEMANDS

The rubber workers won the 30-hour week in the 1935 sitdown strike that established their union. They fought off a number of attempts since then to make them yield it up.

The decision of the recen URW convention to retain the six-hour day bolsters the demand of an ever increasing section of the labor movement for a working day of similar duration.
