"Raisin in the Sun"

The relationship between art and politics has long been debated in the radical movement. To gain full validity, must a novel or a play with a social theme articulate a "message?" If you are still undecided on that question and are anywhere within traveling distance of the New York theater district then make doubly sure to see Lorraine Hansberry's play, "Raisin in the Sun."

It's the story of a Negro family in Chicago's black ghetto. There aren't any speeches in it about the sources of Jim Crow and nobody outlines a political program. The author, director and cast combine their substantial talents to offer an evening of splendid entertainment. But in presenting an artistic truth they deliver as powerful a condemnation of racism and as eloquent a plea for human brotherhood aş any orator ever made.

Lorraine Hansberry is the first Negro woman to reach Broadway with a play and she has earned the distinction. She is clearly concerned with the struggle of her people for full emancipation. But there aren't any cardboard heroes in her play, just human beingshuman beings with the virtues and failings of a people suffering poverty, oppression and dis-

Sidney Poitier, Claudia McNeill, Ruby Dee and Diana Sands star. Expertly directed by Lloyd Richards, they present the Younger family. It is a family that loves and hates and laughs and cries. And as they do they reach into the hearts of their audience. The final curtain came down to an ovation greater than any I have ever heard in the theatre.

The story is about a $10,000 insurance check received by the widowed Mother Younger. The check almost destroys the family, its dignity and its long, uphill battle for such elementary things as a decent home and re-

Center of the conflict is the son portrayed by Sidney Poitier. A 35-year-old chauffeur, he seethes with hatred at the prospect of spending his life as, servant to a rich white man. He becomes obsessed with a "big deal"- a hopeless dream of money and power and escape for himself and his family. The conflict he provokes as he abandons dignity and integrity is stark. But warmth and love and laughter light up even the darkest moments of the Elementary truths about the struggle of the Negro people for a decent life are power fully stated. Mother Younger, matriarch of the family, buys a home in a white neighborhood, not out of any crusading intent, but simply because houses in the Negro district are twice as expensive and not half as good. The tormented, frustrated son wants to accept an offer from the sanctimonious head of a white ence" agreement between the 'community" organization to repurchase the house at a higher price. The mother sternly reminds her son that he is of five generations U.S. imperialism. of slaves and sharecroppers who were never so poor that they took money that meant they were no better than dirt.

Humor about race prejudice is biting. The daughter-in-law, who works as a domestic, is ill. Call up and tell them you won't be in, but don't just say you're sick, advises Mother Younger. Tell them you've got the flu. White people have that too. If you just say you're sick, they'll figure you got yourself cut up.

The predominately white audience develops a strong identity with the Negro family as the emotional level rises. The agony of mother and son when he betrays her trust cuts quo. It implies that the Kremlike a knife. When the sister berates him, tears are unrestrained as the mother turns in fierce anger on her daughter: "What does love cialist wants to endorse the remean to you? Do you only love people when they do good? . . . Do you ever think what tion in Asia, Africa and Latin makes people bad?"

The New York press was unanimous in its acclaim of "Raisin in the Sun." The only sour reaction I have seen was in an otherwise favorable review by William Patterson in the Worker. Judging the play, apparently in accordance with Stalinist norms of "socialist realism," he made this rather incredible com-

"The splendid acting and the brilliant direction help greatly. But precisely because both are so entertaining they also retard the deepening and broadening of your thought process unless you are conscious of all that is unfolding, unless you are conscious of the Negro

Far more accurate and perceptive was the appraisal made by Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times, most serious of the critics in the capitalist press. He said the play "is honest. That is Miss Hansberry's personal contribution to an explosive situation in which simple honesty is the most difficult thing in the world. And also the most illuminating."

Monthly Review on Lippman's Proposals By Daniel Roberts

The last five months have seen an easing of the cold-war tensions. This raises the question anew whether permanent peace might not be achieved through a "peaceful coexistrespective leaders of the Soviet bloc and of the bloc headed by

To many socialists the question of a "peaceful coexistence" agreement between the Soviet Union and imperialism is a thorny one. They want peace; they know the source of war is lodged in Wall Street's anti-Soviet offensive, and they want to see this drive defeated. A deal seems to offer the prospect of ending Washington's war drive. But a deal implies a quid pro lin must help maintain the status quo. And no genuine sotention of imperialist exploitain Western Europe, the U.S. and Japan.

A WAY OUT?

The editors of Monthly Review believe that there is a way out of this dilemma along the lines advanced by Walter Lippman in his recently published little book, The Communist World and Ours. Monthly Review comments on it in its March issue. Lippman's proposals for "peaceful coexistence" in turn derive from a Premier Khrushchev last fall. ### Socialism and Democracy by James P. Cannon

In the same easy and highly readable style for which he is well known, Cannon makes clear the basic Marxist view on socialism and democracy. He says: "What is needed is not a propaganda device or trick, but a formulation of the issue as it really stands; and indeed as it has always stood with real socialists ever since the modern movement was first proclaimed 109 years ago." Cannon tells how the real view has suffered distortion and falsification by Stalinism, Social Democracy and the American ruling class. Send 15 cents for this attractive 21-page pamphlet.

His great love for the masses cannot be understood if it is separated from the movement whose struggles and ideals he incarnated. . . . He saw always the golden future which will follow the final victory of the workers and he was able, in the fight for that future, to conduct his personal life according to its nobler and higher standards." ### Whose Friends?

"We must march on Washington and wake up our friends. We have a right to expect right-to-eat legislation." This is what Emil Mazey, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Auto Workers, said at a March 17 meeting in Detroit, according to Ford Facts, official organ of the world's largest union local, Ford 600.

Mazey also said, "We won an election last November but until now we have not received a single thing from this victory." He pointed out that "unemployment is not only the problem of those currently unemployed, but also of those who are employed, because one out of every four workers in America was either unemployed or worked short weeks during the year."

Undoubtedly Mazey's words reflect the heat of angry unionists who demand that the labor movement get on the ball and force some immediate action on unemployment out of Congress and the White House. It's the same heat that compelled Meany and the AFL-CIO Executive Board meeting in Puerto Rico to take the historic step of calling for a Conference of Unions in Washington April 8 and demanding a shorter work-week without t reduction in pay.

But what Mazey said raises some questions that demand answers:

If, indeed, we have "our friends" in Washington, who are they, and why do we have to march on them to "wake them

If, indeed, we do have to march and parade and mobilize, and we certainly do, why is the AFL-CIO brass trying to reduce the April 8 Conference to a handpicked, carefully screened, bureaucratically rigged, tame, harmless and toothless affair at which the only parading that will be done will be the parading of capitalist

We Greet "The Militant" of India

We note with pleasure the appearance of a new Marxist newspaper in India. It is a bi-weekly bearing the name, The Militant, and is printed by the Revolutionary Workers Party of India.

The RWPI is a new party resulting from the merger of three Marxist groups -the Socialist Party (Marxists), the Communist League and the Madzoor Communist party at Calcutta. This regroupment is considered but a first step. The RWPI is discussing with the Revolutionary Socialist Party of India and the Revolutionary Communist Party of India the possibility of forming a united party of Marxists on a class-struggle program.

We hope that these efforts are crowned with success, for the Marxist movement in India as in a number of other countries is badly splintered.

Repeal the Smith Act

U.S. can claim to have won a decisive victory in the cold-war witch-hunt, it will have to fight some additional battles. The crucial one is repeal of the most active and frequently used thought-control measure on the books-the Smith "Gag" Act.

This law was first directed against the leaders of the Socialist Workers Party and the Minneapolis Teamsters Union during World War II. After the cold war began it was used in a broadside attack on the leaders of the Communist Party. In 1957 the witch-hunt suffered a major reverse when the U.S. Supreme Court overruled the California courts in what is legally known as the "Yates decision," after the name of the first defendant in the case, Oleta Yates.

The Yates decision seemed to strike down the conspiracy provisions in the Smith Act. The high court ruled that the charge of reorganizing the Communist Party in California in 1945 was invalidated by the statute of limitations and that insufficient evidence against the 14 California defendants had been presented. Following this decision the California case was dropped by the government. Immediately thereafter, other Smith Act "conspiracy" cases were either dismissed by Circuit Courts of Appeal where they were under review, or dropped by the government. It became clear, however, that the government had reorganized its witchhunt strategy in this field and was mounting new attacks. First of all, in addition to the "conspiracy" cases, the government had scored several convictions under the "membership" clause of the Smith Act. These remain to be fought out.

Secondly, the government renewed its offensive under the conspiracy clause in two instances-Cleveland and Denver. (The conspiracy clause requires evidence of continuing organizing activity in an organization alleged to advocate the overthrow of the government by force; under the membership clause mere affiliation with such an organization is sufficient.)

In Cleveland and Denver the Circuit Court of Appeals, after reversing the decision on the organizing charge, sent the cases back to court for retrial. An additional factor in these cases was the "alternate" strategy of the government. Com-

Notes in the News

PAPAL PHILOSOPHY - When 3,000 street cleaners showed up at Vatican City with brooms and pushcarts March 19 to receive communion, Pope John XXIII congratulated them on their poverty: "You must be happy, free as you are of the preoccupation of handling large sums of money. It is the rich who have those worries after they have set aside fortunes. They spend their time trying to make more."

LABOR'S PAL - Senator Kennedy (D-Mass.), a Presidential aspirant who is viewed kindly by many union officials, told a March 22 New York conference of United Auto Workers local union presidents that he is opposed to the growing union demand for a shorter work week. He said such a reduction would put America at a disadvantage in "the production war with the Soviet Union."

PEEPING BULLS - New York cops raided a stag party March 19, charging an indecent performance was staged. The cops told newsmen they watched two nude dancers through a back alley peep hole for a full hour before they busted up the party.

NEGRO MAJORITY IN D.C. - Washington, D.C., is now the first large city in the country where a majority of the population is Negro. With a current population of 825,-000 there are 438,000 "non-whites." Only a few thousand of the city's residents are neither white or Negro. The white population has decreased by 131,000 in the past nine years with a heavy exodus to the suburbs. Seventy per cent of the public school pupils are now Negroes. While Negro migration to the North has slackened off in recent years, it was so extensive during the war and immediately afterward that less than two-thirds of the country's Negro population now lives in the

ASBURY HOWARD RE-ELECTED - Union leader Asbury Howard, who was beaten and jailed by Alabama racists for reproducing a cartoon urging Negroes to vote, was reelected without contest as eastern vice president of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union by the union's convention March 19. He filed his acceptance in a one-sentence let-

WANT MADISON AVE. He said his remarks were intended to allay "prophets of doom and gloom."

UE SETS BACK WITCH-HUNTERS -After three years of trying, the Justice Department announced March 24 it was dropping efforts to have the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (independent) branded a "Communist-dominated" union by the Subversive Activities Control Board. Such branding would have been the signal for a government-employer offensive to strip the union of bargaining rights.

EARNING FROM THE GRAVE - Administrators of the estate of the late Vincent Astor have asked court permission to begin investing current earnings from his estate. The money he left behind is "earning" over $200,-000 a month and the administrators just don't know where to put it.

WILDERNESS VS. PEOPLE - Dr. Raymond B. Cowles, a Los Angeles zoologist, says that overpopulation is wiping out the last remnants of American wilderness. To save the wilderness he urges a federal tax on parents. The zoologist's plan would take tax deductions the way from, "Why do you necessary to keep the capitalist funds for public works and the for children away from parents and give it, as think our government doesn't system going, while the plana reward, to childless couples. The group, during the last year, has been carrying on discussions and studies of the various socialist organizations and programs.

After a period of common activity and discussion it was decided unanimously that the most effective way socialists could advance their cause in an organized and systematic way was to join the Socialist Workers Party. Thus a branch was chartered and a program of party-building activity mapped out.
