Seattle Steel Companies Want Union in Shackles

By Frank Powers SEATTLE, July 22 — As elsewhere in the country, the propagandists for the steel corporations in the Pacific Northwest, are raising a great hue and cry about inflation being the main issue in the steel dispute. Despite all this hoopla, the question of wages and fringe benefits is not the central issue in the strike.

whenever they introduce changes in equipment. While the new rates are supposed to be "equitable," nobody has yet been able to adequately define the term. The tremendous mechanization of steel producing facilities in the past three years has given the corporations their opportunity to change the pay scales in the incentive plans...
