DOCKER RANK AND FILE TO REJECT PACT

Port Strikers Rebel at Official Compromise

(Special to The Daily Worker)
LONDON, Feb. 22.—Dockers' delegates who met here today to ratify the agreement ending the nation-wide strike that has paralyzed British ports adjourned today without deciding one way or the other.

They all meet again Monday. Meanwhile the strike continues.

The men's leaders and employers reached a settlement yesterday, but the delegates have to agree before the strike can be called off.

Between now and Monday the delegates will return to their home districts and put their own stamp on the members.

The latter are reported generally determined to insist upon obtaining the full two shilling increase immediately. The union has offered a shilling raise now and another next week.

The meeting yesterday showed that the rank and file of the strikers are in open revolt against their leaders, and the compromise offer of a shilling raise now and another after a period to be settled by further negotiation.

Strikers Suspicious.
The rank and file take the position that the present offer is for the purpose of getting them back to work and demoralizing the strike after they have demonstrated their power to tie up transportation completely.

The demand that the employers be required to furnish the men with a full week's work or pay the equivalent has not been met by the stevedoring companies but has been referred to a commission to be appointed by the minister of labor.

Union members from London and the northern ports are strongly against any compromise whatever as their employers have signified their willingness to put the two-shilling increase. The absolute tie-up of the whole left wing labor support gives the dockers greater confidence in the strength of their position.

Government Make-shifts.
If the settlement is rejected by strikers, and this is regarded as a foregone conclusion, the government will institute a permit system for the unloading and transportation of food. No food will be taken from warehouses, except on permits that are ratified by the strike committees of the union. The cold storage warehouse owners have already agreed to this proposal. Prices will also be fixed by the government.

More Labor Trouble.
The entire labor situation is becoming more delicate as more agreements expire. The miners' federation will meet the operators on March 6 and has called a delegate conference for March 12 to consider the offers made by the operators. It is agreed in all quarters here that unless the operators grant handsome concessions a strike will be called.

KIWANIANS SEE TWO CULTURES' SHARP CONTRAST

Army Instructor Insults Parsee Student

Delivering a Washington birthday speech before the Kiwanis club, at the Hotel Sherman, Colonel McCloy, chief of staff of the sixth army corps area, exhibited several copies of THE DAILY WORKER as examples of the subversive "pacifist and bolshevik" propaganda spread in the United States.

Speaks On "Patriotism."
The colonel spoke on "Practical Patriotism," and according to him this could only be accomplished by loyalty and instant demands for the biggest and best army and navy in the world.

Following the meeting of which Captain Hopkins was chairman, Manek K. Anklesaria, an Indian student at Northwestern, and formerly one of Mahatma Gandhi's active assistants, approached Colonel McCloy and expressed a difference of opinion, announcing himself as opposed to militarism. Western culture was shown in its finest flower in the hands of the Indian, in the best swashbuckler manner, declared that "you shall not have the honor of shaking hands with Colonel McCloy."

He denounced everyone from Lenin down to Jane Adams and told Anklesaria that he was not a citizen of this country and would never become one "because I shall send your name to the British Embassy and they will take care of you."

Anklesaria is a soft-spoken young Parsee, who participated in the great non-cooperation movement under the leadership of Gandhi which shook British rule in India to its foundations, and which culminated in Gandhi's arrest and sentence to six years imprisonment.

His Pacifism Strained.
Anklesaria carries a scar under his chin caused by a British policeman's baton and according to his description of the incident his pacifist beliefs were strained almost to the breaking point. He is a student in journalism at Northwestern and intends to start a national Indian newspaper on his return to his native land.

TRIBUNE STORY OF DELAYED STRIKE BRANDED FALSE

Ladies' Garment Workers Ready for Action

The settled policy of the capitalist press to take liberties with the labor movement and falsely news with the obvious intention of injuring the workers in their efforts to secure better conditions was again demonstrated yesterday when the Chicago Tribune published a yarn to the effect that the threatened strike of the International Ladies' Garment Workers in Chicago was postponed for a week.

THE DAILY WORKER was informed authoritatively by leaders of the union that all necessary steps had been taken to set the strike machinery in motion when the word to quit was given in the shop, but that the date for the strike, also set, was kept secret for tactical reasons.

THE DAILY WORKER reporter, after seeing the file in the Tribune immediately got in touch with the local office of the Ladies' Garment Workers and was informed by Manager M. Rappaport, of the Joint Board, that there was no truth whatever in the Tribune yarn, "but that nothing better can be expected from the capitalist press."

There is no let up on strike preparations according to information given by THE DAILY WORKER. Halls are engaged for meetings, leaflets are ready for distribution, chairmen are appointed, but the date of the strike is known only to the strike leaders and the rumor appearing in the capitalist press that the strike will be called on such and such a date are only guesses. Of course, if they keep guessing long enough they may hit it right sometime.

THE DAILY WORKER, however, is contented with helping the union to make a success of the strike and not with competing with Old Moore's Almanac in prophecy or mind reading.

Adams, G. O. P. Head, Says Its Absurd to Fire Oily Attorney

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The Republican National Committee thru its chairman today came to the defense of Attorney-General Daugherty, whose resignation Senators Lodge and Pepper, administration leaders, and Senator Wheeler, Montana democrat, are seeking because of his connection with the oil scandal.

John T. Adams, chairman of the committee, in announcing that he would issue tonight a statement defending Daugherty, said:

"It is absurd to talk of dismissing a man who has not had a full hearing and an opportunity to defend himself."

Feel Whole G. O. P. Attacked

Adams was urged to issue the statement by George B. Lockwood, secretary of the National Committee, who in a recent editorial in the National Republican, a party paper, said the attacks on Daugherty were unfair and unjust.

Rallying of the party organization's spokesmen to Daugherty's support caused a great stir among politicians today for two reasons:

1.—Because it aligned Adams, as committee head, in opposition to Pepper and Lodge, two of the party's most influential senators.

2.—Because Daugherty in this letter to Pepper yesterday said the attacks were not directed at him alone but at the whole republican administration. Adams, it was pointed out, apparently agrees with Daugherty in this view of the matter.

IT'S TOUGH JOB OUSTING DAUGHERTY

LaFollette and Wheeler Join Forces for Monday's Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Senator LaFollette today took command of the Senate effort to oust Attorney General Daugherty from the cabinet.

At the same time, the belief in administration circles that if President Coolidge does not yield this week to the Senate's pressure on him to dismiss Daugherty, the President will stand by his attorney general until Daugherty has had a full hearing before the Senate committee.

LaFollette's first step was to arrange with Republican leaders for adoption on Monday of the Wheeler resolution to investigate Daugherty and for appointment of a committee to conduct the investigation.

Wheeler Writes to Pepper.
Senator Wheeler, Montana, author of the resolution and the others leading the investigation, sought at the desk of the attorney general yesterday in a letter to Senator Pepper, Pennsylvania. In that letter Daugherty said he would carry his case to the country in a speaking tour. LaFollette believes Daugherty will not have much time for campaigning when the senate investigation gets under way the middle of next week.

Wheeler will present the report of the New York investigator who, he stated yesterday, discovered that Daugherty had speculated in oil stocks. The substance of this report has already been given President Coolidge.

The investigating committee will be headed by Senator Brookhart, Iowa, republican. Brookhart is chief aide to LaFollette.

Daugherty Pleads for Time.
When Daugherty was urged last Sunday by Senator Borah to resign at a conference in the White House with President Coolidge, he is reported to have taken the attitude that he desired to obtain the opinions of his colleagues in the cabinet. However, so far as is known, he never has consulted with the other cabinet members and the investigation is not postponed at the cabinet meeting last Tuesday.

Daugherty has made no statement concerning Senator Wheeler's charge that he speculated in oil stocks beyond his formal reply to Wheeler's charges and his letter to Pepper yesterday. He has said nothing in the Pepper letter, which was a reply to a note from Pepper urging Daugherty to resign because he was on the wrong side of the issue in the public mind, the attorney general said.

AIR PILOT GAINS NEW ALTITUDE

MacReady Climbs 41,000 Feet In Two Hours

(Special to The Daily Worker)
DAYTON, O., Feb. 22.—Lieutenant J. A. MacReady, army air pilot, today broke the world's altitude record by climbing 41,000 feet. His time was 2 hours and 3 minutes.

The previous record was 30,745 feet, set by Leconte, French flyer, on October 30, 1923.

MacReady's record was unofficial, but the flight was held under the regulations of the Federated Aerial Club, with Orville Wright as chief observer.

In Spiral Climb.
MacReady used his new Lepere plane for the flight, which started at 9:27 a. m.

When 15,000 feet had been gained, the veteran pilot swung the nose of his ship upwards and started his spiral climb.

The weather was ideal for the test. MacReady was dressed in a costume which was unchanged after official exposure. He was covered from the feet with a feather lined quilted flying suit, his regulation uniform, a heavy suit of woolen underwear and a heavy blanket.

The big plane was equipped with special oxygen tanks and other special equipment to supply the pilot with life-giving air. He did not use the oxygen tank until 20,000 feet above earth.

Terribly Cold.
"I cannot tell how cold it was," MacReady said. "My thermometer about 60 degrees mercury registering below zero. It may have been much colder, for the instrument went to smash before I reached the height of my flight."

Engine Gave Trouble.
The small gathering that witnessed the start was increased to more than a thousand after the flyer had been in the air an hour.

His engine started to give me a little trouble, or I would still have been going upward," MacReady said as he landed.

Spoke.
If the unofficial figure of 41,000 feet is unchanged after official calibration, MacReady will have attained the highest altitude ever.

The bureau of standards in Washington will make the decision.

Victims of War Lords May Be Freed as Sop to the Jingoes

LEAVENWORTH, Kans., Feb. 22.—War department investigators today began hearing the stories of 177 men serving sentences in the federal prison here for war time offenses.

Major James Stanfield and Major Frank R. Ross, who are conducting the inquiry to determine if sentences passed on the men are too severe, said such of the prisoners sentenced for violation of regulations said that recommendations for leniency will be made in cases of men who may have been unjustly punished.

The investigation is expected to take a week.
