CATCH WEEKS IN ATTEMPT TO 'COVER UP'

Tries To Hide War Frauds In Aircraft Case

(Special to The Daily Worker)
WASHINGTON, April 3.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler of the Daugherty investigating committee today ordered a subpoena issued for certain papers "seized" by Secretary of War Weeks, when new testimony was given involving the War Department in the war frauds case.

The subpoena also calls for Weeks' personal appearance. Wheeler called the stand Captain William F. Voland of the air service and demanded that he hand over records of the Thomas F. Lane, former legal adviser in the War Department.

Fired For Aiding Probe.
Because he refused to obey orders to "keep away from the Brookhart committee," Thomas Lane, legal adviser to the chief of the army air service, today told the senate Daugherty investigating committee that he was dismissed by Captain Voland, chief of the aviation section of the air service.

Subsequently, Lane testified, files of private investigations he made of the Standard Aircraft Corporation were removed from his desk by Voland.

"After I had attended a session of the committee," Lane testified, "Pickens, department auditor, testified, Voland called me on the phone and ordered me to keep away from the committee and the captain," Lane said.

"I told Voland he couldn't tell me when and where I could go. He said they were orders and I would have to abide by them. I didn't and was let out."

"Has Voland these files now?" "Yes," he said he would return them to me after he had used them in preparing a statement for this committee.

The committee summoned Voland by phone to appear immediately. The committee also instructed Chairman Brookhart to inform Secretary of War Weeks of Voland's reported action.

LEGION READ WITH WAR GOD AGAINST WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Powell, director of the Legion's Americanization Commission.

COMMUNIST PLOT TO OUST CAL'S CABINET BARED

Two Out, Says Marvin;
Worst Yet to Come

(Special to The Daily Worker)
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 3.—With two cabinet ministers out and several more steps heavy picking the backs of the official chair, Fred Marvin, editor of the Searchlight Department of the New York Commercial, declared in a speech delivered under the auspices of the Indianapolis branch of the National Road Trades Association that the Communist movement was on the road to success with its plot to destroy the Coolidge cabinet and open the floodgates to a wave of Bolshevist propaganda that would overthrow the United States government.

Denby First.
Marvin charged that the Teapot Dome scandal was an invention of the Communists, who started the investigation with the object of weakening faith in our institutions and dragging officials before the public morally and politically naked so to speak.

Denby was the first victim marked for slaughter by the Communists, declared Marvin. He occupied the important position of secretary of the navy. Being a "big navy man" Mr. Denby immediately on taking office proceeded to build up the fleet and place it on a war footing. This seemed to make the Communists very angry. So they met in secret session (he did not say they wore masks) and decided to get Denby. The rest was easy.

A few instructions to their agents and the senate and Denby was seen saying good-bye to his friends and dodging the photographers on his way to the political scrub brush. Such is the power of the Communists.

Skid Grewed for Others.
Having disposed of Denby, they next turned their guns on Harry M. Daugherty. He committed the crime of "preventing mass action on the American railroads during the shopmen's strike." His doom was sealed. The Communists deliberately and with malice aforethought brought so much evidence of his "patriotism" in the form of "assembling troops," divers grafters and evil doers that the American people had to wear gas masks while his conduct was under scrutiny. Coolidge was finally obliged to drive Daugherty out but not before the people were beginning to become convinced that Coolidge was as big a crook as Fred Marvin revealed on an amazing series of Communist propaganda.

DEMOCRACY SAFE SAYS DAVIS AFTER HIS NOMINATION

McAdoo Second Choice
Of His Delegation

(Special to The Daily Worker)
KANSAS CITY, Kas., April 3.—"Democracy is marching toward its greatest triumph," Jonathan M. Davis, dirt farmer-governor of Kansas, declared today after he had been given the endorsement of the presidential nomination.

The governor wept as the endorsement was voted without dissent. "I wish my old democratic father and mother were so that they could witness the victory the party will secure next November," he said.

Delegates chosen to the national convention in New York were instructed to vote for Davis "until a majority decide it is no longer advisable." William G. McAdoo will get the support after that as most of the Governors are McAdoo men.

The convention delivered a direct blow to Governor Al Smith, of New York, in declaring that the delegate should support no one who is not wholeheartedly in favor of complete enforcement of the prohibition law.

Supporters of Gov. Davis expect to line up delegates from several other midwestern states before the convention. The keynote of the governor's appeal for nomination by the national convention will be restoration of confidence in government.

Recent disclosures, in the oil lease and department of justice investigations in Washington indicate that the "sacred fire of freedom are being extinguished" by the governor declared.

Strikers Don't Worry Bosses While Police Protect Strike Scabs, Says John M. Glenn, Labor foe

John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, masterpiece of the biggest open shopper, admitted to a reporter for the DAILY WORKER that the enemies of labor in Chicago, among the biggest employers, are not worrying overmuch about the present strike of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

"Not that they do not fear the plucky spirit of the strike pickets. Not that they do not fear the growing spirit of solidarity among the workers in the needle trade."

But their chief nightmare, Glenn, who has played an infamous part in every labor struggle in this city and state, openly states that all is safe at the city hall, nothing is doing in the city council, as in previous struggles, with the result that boss dreamers feel they are sitting pretty.

"There is not a Chinaman's chance for a strike to succeed when every labor struggle in this city and state, openly states that all is safe at the city hall, nothing is doing in the city council, as in previous struggles, with the result that boss dreamers feel they are sitting pretty."

"I wish my old democratic father and mother were so that they could witness the victory the party will secure next November," he said.

SHIP CAPTAIN TO TELL THE DAUGHTERY PROBERS ABOUT ATTACK ON WORKERS' RULE

By LAURENCE TODD.
(Staff Correspondent, The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Documents and a gold-and-red medal conferred upon him by General Yudenitch for distinguished service in helping that counter-revolutionary to start on his drive to capture Petrograd in the summer of 1919, are displayed by Captain James V. Martin, awaiting his turn to testify in the Daugherty investigation.

Marlin proposes to show that Herbert Hoover entered into a conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet government of Russia, by furnishing food, motor trucks and gasoline to the Yudenitch expedition, while Winston Churchill, British war minister, promised war equipment including tanks and airplanes, and the French furnished ammunition, uniforms and technical experts.

He has copies of the bills of lading of the Shipping Board vessel, Lake Peary, which he was commanded when he carried a cargo of food, motor trucks, truck parts and gasoline to Revel in August, 1919, and delivered them to the "Supply Committee, Russian Armies"—which was Yudenitch.

Flight Aircraft Combine.
Martin is a veteran inventor, pilot and producer of airplanes, who has patented the various airplanes of the "Supply Committee" that he got justice for the government against the "Supply Committee" that has robbed some $250,000,000.

"During the war he was sent abroad as an expert on aircraft engineering, but was deprived of his credentials while there and finally took refuge in the United States, where he experienced no success."

This ship was in War Department service and was loading for a return to America from Bordeaux, in July 1919, when he was notified that he had been transferred with his ship to the service of the American Relief Administration. Hoover called him orders to take on a cargo of food and motor trucks and proceed to Hamburg and Revel. He believes his enemies in the aircraft combine conspired to get him sent into mined and dangerous waters in this way.

He sailed to Revel, taking as a passenger a General Wall, who represented the Kitchik, Denkin and Yudenitch military movement, which had a directing office in Paris, which had a directing office in Paris, which had a directing office in Paris.

"I have cables and letters," said Martin to The Federated Press, "that prove that Hoover tried to persuade me to carry this General Wall to Revel, and then, when I insisted upon authorization from the Shipping Board for such an illegal act, Hoover brought pressure at London so that E. C. Tobey, representing the Board in London, advised me to take Wall aboard."

His shows a letter, on Shipping Board stationery, signed by "Gen. Ernest N. Wall," acknowledging that he was accepting special conditions of passage on the ship.

Marlin calls one of the bills of lading, which recites the amounts of gasoline, grass, motor trucks and truck parts consigned by his vessel to the "Russian Armies" at Revel.

Congressman Woodruff of Michigan, to whom Martin first disclosed this information, believes the documents are genuine and that Martin's story is substantially accurate.
