

FARRELL RADICAL BAITERS BEGIN TO HAUL IN HORNS

Brutal Officials Fear Result of Act

(Special to the Daily Worker)
FARRILL, Pa., April 15.—Prosecutor Richard of Mercer County is making bold efforts to bring the Farrell cases before the grand jury on April 21. No stone is being left unturned by the state to railroad the defendant workers to jail.

Chief of Police Loyalock and Squire Farrell, in whose court the preliminary hearings were held, have been undergoing a change in heart and are now endeavoring to crawl back into the good graces of the Farrell workers by Platonic washing their hands of the guilt resting on their heads.

DAILY WORKER SCORNS DETRACTORS: WHOSE MILLIONS WILL WIN—ISSUE AT THAW'S TRIAL

Paid Alienist Denies Harry Is Batty

(Special to the Daily Worker)
PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—The flight which Harry K. Thaw and his millions are making in this city hall court room, after the trial of Thaw for the murder of Dr. William G. Mervin, is attracting the attention of thousands of eyes which have seen the Thaw millions win before. The question is whether Harry's millions—limited at six—will be as heavy artillery as the millions of the Thaw family which are now opposing his release.

Boss Fields To Strikers

statement supporting the strikers, but did not do it.

Johnathan, Addresses Strikers. In his speech to the strikers yesterday Anton Johannsen, of the "Committee 16," said the old policy of organized striking must be met by the organized power of the workers. He said that he organized labor was expected and feared by big business and politicians, pointing to the fact that the labor had been able to elect down Crows' majority in the election to last year 1920.

"In Butte, Montana, during the telephone strike," said Johannsen, "the organized miners were able to have almost every Bell telephone in the city taken out and replaced by an automatic phone. A federal judge in Helena, Montana, issued an injunction against the strikers and many of them went to jail for striking. The garment strike here is only one phase of the struggle of the workers against unfair use of the courts."

"Nowadays judges and lawyers can interpret the laws to suit themselves because there are so many laws. The application of almost any law need a lawyer nowadays to stay out of jail. You need a lawyer even to stay in jail. Let us hope that the struggle of the workers against the courts will be resumed in Berlin week. The Soviets have made up their minds to sue their government an essential condition of the resumption of commercial relations. As Zinoviev said the Soviet government is in no need to rush matters. It is strong and powerful and growing in strength. While its enemies are growing weaker."

Play the cards, which it termed "painted speculators of abomination." "It is about time to tie a can of worms to the neck of the old, worn out fossils of the past. Our comrades with their faces two feet from the ground, physically and mentally."

California Protects Labor

The speech made by Senator Shortridge on the question of Japanese immigration. Doubtless will please the jingoes and alarm the pacifists but despite the provocative character of the remarks made by the senator from California Japan will go to war with us to settle the question of the admission of her citizens to our sacred soil. On the question of the Philippines or the repayment of the recent loan by the House of Morgan that is something else again.

"Are we going to back down before the threats of Japan?" hoarsely shouted the senator from the state that is filling its prisons with members of the I. W. W. for mere affiliation, with the organization and that keeps Tom Mooney confined despite unquestioned proof of his innocence. The same California ruling class that brought in Japanese to compete with the white workers and thereby lower wages is today yelling for their exclusion and expulsion.

The trouble began when the lowly Japanese worker boarded his scanty wages and proceeded to buy up some of the land that was cheap before California became the paradise of real estate sharks. Japanese syndicates were formed and thousands of acres were owned and cultivated by the little yellow men. Japanese labor on the Pacific coast competes with white labor chiefly on the farms; to this landlords have no objection but when the Japs acquire property then the 100 per cent American blood of the native sons begins to boil and they immediately clamor for the support of their state and national government.

The conflict between two groups of capitalists disguised by urging restrictive legislation for the "protection of labor." On behalf of the dozens of members of our class who are in California prisons for their working class activities we invite any deluded worker to make a pilgrimage to Sunny California and see for himself just what this protection amounts to.

What About Borah?

Where is Senator Borah and his committee for investigating Soviet Russia these days when proof of the murderous activities of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, directed against the Soviet government, is at hand in the shape of documents furnished by Captain Martin showing beyond doubt that relief funds were expended to bolster up the counter-revolutionary offensive headed by Yudin?

It is the Borah committee that has been charged with the task of delving into all phases of the relations of the United States government with Soviet Russia but it is significant that with the opening up of other investigations that might lead to some point the Borah committee adjourned its sessions.

The position of Borah on this matter is quite clear. He has been a kindly counselor of President Coolidge although some of his remarks have been somewhat pointed; he has, however, devoted most of his energy to urging that the republican party clean house so that it can better fold the masses and he feels that if and when LaFollette bolts upon his shoulders will fall the faded but welcome mantle of progressivism within the republican party.

Yesterday the DAILY WORKER urged that the workers and farmers demand of Senators Wheeler and Brookhart a complete exposure of the Hoover atrocities; we do not withdraw that demand but in addition to that we feel that Senator Borah, because of his previous experience with Russian affairs, is peculiarly fitted to explore further the obscene iniquities of the Hoover attempt to drown in blood, by use of money appropriated for the relief of starving women and children, the only workers' and farmers' government in the world.

Another S. P. Confession

Not even the proponents of the Dawes plan deny that its purpose is to prevent the complete breakdown of capitalism in Europe. It is therefore of sweet significance to find that Algeron Lee, well-known socialist and director of the Rand school—a socialist party institution—also recognizes this and approves of it. Mr. Lee, with one gloved hand resting lightly on his cane, said to the correspondent of the Federated Press:

I fear the evil has gone too far to be cured without more sweeping measures. The plan seems to constitute a slight step beyond the impossible Versailles treaty. If such action had been taken a year or two earlier it would give more hope that Europe may be saved from a general breakdown.

So after all the fierce denials of the socialists we find that the Communists were right when they said that the socialists were interested primarily in saving capitalism. Oh, well.

A New York lawyer talked a couple of burglars out of $4,000 while they were robbing his house the other day. Once more the value of technical training has been demonstrated.

The Greek populace chased their king and voted for a republic by an enormous majority on April 1. Dispatches today announce that martial law has been proclaimed. Score one more for democracy.

Brigadier-General Davies, House of Morgan reparations expert, visited Mussolini in Rome and told him he will return to inform his minute men of the very latest mode in blacklists.

There Are Two Sides To Every Story

By ROSE BASTON STOKES.
Walking with a porteous acquaintance I met old Brownwick Avenue the other morning. I suddenly halted before a mountainous pile on the curbstone.

"What is it?" asked by companion. "Look!" I replied, pointing at the pile.

"A pile of casters of drawers, an ancient rusted safe and a kitchen table, at the bottom; an odd lot bestrided on the side, untraced by a broken-down sewing machine and a wooden stool, and, piled on top, an incredible mass of shoes, oil slicks, stiletto, bedding, the rags that were once un-degarment, knives, oil slicks, hats, shoes, baskets, chairs.

The previous night, snow had fallen heavily, in the early morning, rain had come down in torrents. It was raining. The streets were slushy, the gutters, edging streams.

Out on the Street.
The pile of wretchedness accumulated by the weakness of the present years of bitter struggle with poverty, did not escape the storm. To the remotest flake in the chests of drawers at the bottom, the rain and the snow had been put on the wind would come and crack the

While we are rightfully pointing out the weakness of the present labor union movement, the class collaboration policy of the reactionary leaders, the bankruptcy of the socialist movement and its complete surrender to Communist rule, half does not pay more attention to the ever-growing number of left wing groups and left wing press.

The latest addition to the left-wing press, is the Progressive Shoe and Leather Worker, thus the militants are being mobilized by the use of papers representing national left wing committees in the Building, Clothing, and Printing and Railroad industries.

This is the militant rank and file answer to the Compara, Lewis, John, and other workers behind the scenes. The launching of the Progressive Shoe and Leather Worker is a real thing, and now we may have had the terrific chaotic condition of the leather industry, and the broadside that the reactionary half does not make there. That its first issue should deal almost exclusively with anti-Communist activities, that it will be understood. For years the burning question was dualism versus unity, and now we may see the end of the dualistic program and the gradual merging of the union class collaboration.

The entire industry, nothing is more than the union class collaboration. The shoe and leather industry, nothing is more than the union class collaboration.

POST WAR ITALY
Reviewed by ELLA G. WOLFE
"Rome or Death", by Carlton Beals, New York, The Century Co., $250. A discussion of the victory of Fascism in Italy.

In view of recent revolutionary developments in Italy, the rise of Italy, and Mexico, development, directly or indirectly influenced by the Fascist movement of Italy, Rome or Death by Carlton Beals is of very special interest to us.

Beals lives in Italy during the rise and development of the Fascist movement in Italy, and his book is a study of the rise of the Fascist movement in Italy, Rome or Death by Carlton Beals is of very special interest to us.

As a bookkeeper for the development of Agrarian Fascism we are studying to a careful and excellent study of the rise of the Fascist movement in Italy. Says the author: "The rise of the Fascist movement in Italy, Rome or Death by Carlton Beals is of very special interest to us."

The third part of "Rome or Death" deals with the rise of labor Fascism and the author indicates that the immediate effect of the success of labor Fascism was the disruption of the Italian labor movement.

Thus follows the cause for the decline of the Socialist party; the clarification of the Fascist program, in the hands of the Fascist party, in the hands of the Fascist party, in the hands of the Fascist party.

Excepting the above statement the whole book is a veritable mine of authentic information as given by the worker who wishes to take part in the struggle for the future of the American labor movement.

The Poor Poles say he feels sorry for the peasant of Bessarabia but if they start to fight for their freedom they will only disturb the peaceful rule of the Roumanian nobles.

One Side of Story.
These may be the words that come to ask questions about matters that are no concern of their. Well, it is I who am the author. It was the author Mrs. B. is a "liberal" of a sort. Her periodical, the X—, are very conservative people with an extreme bias.

The Other Side.
The following night, I met Mrs. B. a close friend of the X—, at a club where the first liberal party gathered. Mrs. B. is a "liberal" of a sort. Her periodical, the X—, are very conservative people with an extreme bias.

Mrs. B. whom I had not seen for years, sat down to chat and, a little she chatted about the X—. . . It almost broke her heart. . . she has just had her entire house re-decorated and was planning a social season in town. . . She looked almost as much as a child.

I felt relieved that the bourgeoisie did not come with me. I could not have borne her "I told you so" look. . . I was not sure that she would have cared to care of his sick, that a habitual drunkard is a sick man and that a habitual drunkard is a sick man and that a habitual drunkard is a sick man.

Michael T. Berry in his article gives a short and concise history of the shoe and leather workers' efforts to organize and now we may have had the terrific chaotic condition of the leather industry, and the broadside that the reactionary half does not make there.

Czerwonsky's Violin Renders Beautiful "Carnival of Life"

By ALFRED V. FRANKENTHIN.
Richard Czerwonsky, well-known as a violinist and teacher of the violin revealed himself as a composer and conductor, at the first concert of the Bush Conservatory Orchestra at Orchestra Hall last Tuesday night. He produced for the first time two modern sketches and the symphonic poem "Carnival of Life." The orchestra played the first movement, work of daring and unusual harmonies, while the poem is a more serious composition, with many new and original orchestral effects.

There were three soloists, all graduates of Bush Conservatory. Mads Geis played the first Violin piano concerto, which formed an interesting comparison with the same composer's symphonic poem "Law of Victory" which ended the program. The early list of the concert is brilliant, as times all but commonplace. Josephine Becker, contralto, sang the aria "Don Patato" from Verdi's opera "Don Carlos."

Czerwonsky as a conductor lives up to his reputation as one of the finest of violinists. His orchestra is made up partly of students, partly of professional musicians, and the effects they produce under Czerwonsky's leadership rank high in symphonic performance.

The next concert of the Bush Conservatory orchestra will be given at Orchestra Hall, on May 20.
