TROTSKY SPEECH SAYS U. S. WARLIKE

Wants To Pull Europe's Revolutionary Tooth

(Special to The Daily Worker)
MOSCOW, April 21.—Speaking to a physical culture and sport congress today, Leon Trotsky showed slight if any effects of the illness from which he has been recuperating. All of the old fire and eloquence was noticeable in his speech. His recent speeches, of which he has made a number lately, have dealt with the world situation and particularly the attitude of France and America towards Soviet Russia. He said that France was pursuing a system of "vital blackmail" toward Russia by encouraging Poland, Roumania, and Turkey to act against the Soviet. France, he said, possessed the largest army in the world and wielded the iron fist of the capitalist, while the United States commanded the greater part of the wealth of the whole world because of Europe's imperialist war. "The United States is the most democratic country which plunges into this imperialist war without idealistic stimulation," said M. Trotsky. "It has become a colonial power of Babel and is trying to drag into its stomach all the huge gains it realized from the war. Says U. S. Expects War. "It is now keeping about France's military base at the same time it is carefully preparing for future war. It is placing aviation and aeroplanes as foremost in its equipment. It is developing these destructive agencies not only for a struggle against the feudal Japan, but also against Europe. "The war minister remarked ironically that Americans considered the old methods of warfare too barbaric and believed that a more humane means, such as chemical warfare, should be applied. "We all know the use to which the dentist, gas and aviation war," he continued, "but when we see the United States preparing to use gas to extract a revolutionary tooth from Europe we must be on the alert. In the meantime Americans are trying these new games upon their criminals, regarding the use of electricity as a means of killing wrongdoers. Capitalism Must Die. "Picture to yourself rich and spoiled America sending to famine-stricken, revolutionary Europe whole squadrons of airplanes, which threaten to rain these noxious gases upon our heads." This is no fantastic romance. "Soviet Russia, however, will not resort to such inhuman methods to pain its ends. War must be eradicated entirely, but it cannot be done by these extreme measures. It can only be done by the annihilation of capitalist society. In spite of the recognition already accorded by Great Britain, Italy and others, we must be ready for all eventualities."

Canuck Party Communist

Workers Party, Canada is Now Communist

Annual Convention Plans Big Campaigns.

(Special to The Daily Worker)
TORONTO, Canada, April 21.—For a delegate, representing various sections of the Workers Party of Canada, met in annual convention here on April 13, 19 and 20 to discuss the policies and lay down the strategy for the coming year. One of the first questions which came before the convention was the change of the name of the Workers Party of Canada to the Communist Party of Canada was carried by practically a unanimous vote. It was agreed, in the discussion of the question, that the Workers Party of Canada was known in Canada as a Communist Party and there was nothing to be gained by longer retaining the name of Workers Party, and that it would help the organization in its appeal to the workers by openly avowing itself as a Communist Party.

Farmers Cutting Down Wheat and Beef Production

Price Slumps Resulting In Serious Changes.

(Special Correspondent of the Fed. Press)
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—"Farmers in the Middle West and Northwestern States have made definite changes in crop and livestock programs in an effort to meet the situation caused by the price slump during the last three years in some of the leading farm products," asserts the U. S. Department of Agriculture in its outlook for 1924. "The report goes on to show that the farmers, wearying of waiting for government or other outside aid, have adjusted conditions as well as they could with the meagre means at hand. There has been an increase in dairying, hog-raising, poultry raising, and in feed crop production such as corn, alfalfa, soy beans, etc. But no word of how many farmers have gone to the wall to make this change in production. The report makes no suggestion for coordinating the changing production of the farmers nor does it offer assistance in preventing another crisis in the farmer-produce market. It merely comments that "generally speaking, the changes indicated are said to be those which the farmers should have made in view of the economic situation."

Catholics and Ku Kluxers Are Still Fighting in Oregon

(Special to The Daily Worker)
PORTLAND, Ore., April 21.—The Ku Klux "invisible" government and the Catholic Church are still fighting about the law requiring compulsory attendance at public schools in this state. The federal Court has just declared the law unconstitutional in considering the injunction brought by the Hill Military Academy against state officers to prevent them from enforcing the law. The Klan now plans to appeal the case to the United States Supreme Court. The Ku Kluxers still hope to make their Klan-controlled public schools the only educational institutions in the state.

Wet and Dry Fight On In Pennsylvania

Fate of Pinchot Is in the Balance

(Special to The Daily Worker)
WASHINGTON, April 21.—What happens to Gifford Pinchot in Pennsylvania tomorrow may depend whether the wet and dry issue will figure largely in the republican convention at Cleveland in June. Pinchot, candidate for delegate at large, to that convention, has been marked for defeat by organization republican leaders, who want to punish him for his recent attacks on Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. For months they have been lying in wait for Pinchot because they do not like his attitude towards President Coolidge's administration. The Pennsylvania Governor says it is the voter of the wet speaking. He claims the issue is one of law enforcement and that there is not and never has been any doubt about his loyalty to Mr. Coolidge. So, it is believed, Pinchot is likely to take this issue to the referendum and it might make some trouble.

Two Kinds of Courts

The Courts of the Bosses Today
The Courts of Labor Tomorrow

Nearly two score strike pickets are scheduled to come before Judge Charles M. Foell for sentence today. Their alleged crime is that they picketed the shops of the truck garment bosses in violation of a court injunction. The garment strikers are putting up a fight for human rights. They demand the right to live and enjoy life. They seek better homes in which to live, decent clothes to wear, sufficient food to nourish them—all mere human necessities. The garment bosses are putting up a fight for property rights, the right to rob the workers of all these things thru low wages, a long workday and poor conditions. Court injunctions against picketing are cudgels in the hands of the bosses in their fight for their property rights. The courts, therefore, that grant these injunctions, are a bulwark of defense of property rights, the sacred rights of the bosses, the employers, everywhere. The two-score pickets before Judge Foell will not have their human rights considered. Wigan Judge Foell was elected and placed on the bench of the court room he now occupies, he was sworn to uphold, not human rights, but property rights, the keystone of the whole capitalist system—the present social order. Whatever edict Judge Foell issues it will be clothed in the velvet language of "democracy."

William Howard (Bill the Fat) Taft, the clownish head of the United States Supreme Court, at Washington, had all his thoughts on property rights when he, with other supreme court justices, joined in declaring anti-child labor legislation "unconstitutional." The majority of the United States Supreme Court, in defense of property rights, also declared "unconstitutional" legislation limiting the working hours of women. It is always the rights of property that swing the scales of justice on the side of the employers. Justice is blind to the cry of the men, women and children of labor for a better life. It is, therefore, easily understood why the DAILY WORKER is not a welcome guest in the court rooms of capitalism, and why it is hated by the legal lights of the employers. The DAILY WORKER is against the rights of property. The DAILY WORKER is for the rights of humanity. The DAILY WORKER is against the bosses. The DAILY WORKER is for the strikers.

WESTERN FOUNDRY PLANT A HEGEWISCH HIT AS MEN JOIN WALKOUT AT PULLMAN

The strike of workers in five departments of the Pullman Steel Car Foundry Co. spread yesterday to similar plants in the plant of the Western Steel Car Foundry Co.'s plant at Hege-wisch, Ill., a suburb near Pullman. The news of the strike spread to the town that was put on the map by the lightweight prize fighter "Battling" Nelson, had a very inspiring effect on the Pullman strikers as they gathered Monday morning for their daily strike meeting at 158 E. 10th street on the far south side. Among those who walked out at Hege-wisch were patterners, riveters, fitters, buckers and heaters, who do work similar, and At a mass meeting yesterday, Mr. Strummert's Hall the strikers at the Pullman Car and Foundry Co. were addressed by John O. Holmgren, General Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of Chicago. Holmgren has been dealing with the strike situation in Pullman since the strikers got out one week ago protesting against a wage reduction ranging from 15 to 45 per cent. Holmgren told the strikers that this wage cut was to go into effect in all other departments as well as the striking department if the Company had not been halted by the spontaneous walkout of 500 workers. The Company fears the strike will spread to other departments and is doing everything possible to prevent it. At yesterday's meeting a representative of the company's shop committee was present and told the strikers that the company officials were willing to meet an enlarged committee representing the strikers at a settlement. The strikers responded to and enlarged the present strike committee to five men, two representing each of the departments on strike, the riveters, fitters, buckers and heaters. This committee was to meet the company officials and report back at the strike meeting at ten o'clock Tuesday morning in the same hall. There was no organization that the strikers are picketing at the main gates of the Pullman Car Works. On Monday morning the company's main gates were closed on duty, and the strikers are picketing the gates to protect scabs. There is little doubt that the strikers in the Pullman Works and in the neighboring towns could be organized if the A. F. of L. got on the job and started an organization campaign.

GILLETTE HAS ANCIENT ALIBI IN HOCH QUIZ

Named With Daugherty and McLean.

(Special to The Daily Worker)
WASHINGTON, April 21.—Speaker Gillette today entered an indignant denial before the Senate investigating committee that he got a trunk full of liquor seized by the department of justice. "It is an outrage to allow such statements to be given out," said Gillette in denouncing the testimony of Captain H. S. Scate, former department of justice agent, who told the committee last week that Gillette was named. Gillette's weak alibi. Gillette explained that the trunk in question belonged to a constituent. It was being sent by express from Florida to Massachusetts when a bottle of liquor broke and the trunk was seized. Gillette said that he was in Augusta, Ga., and instructed his secretary to write to the department of justice and have the trunk released. The trunk was sent to Gillette's office in the Senate building. He inquired of the committee cross-examining the speaker of the house, said Senator Hoover, who said that he had not seen the trunk. "I did not like the idea of the story about the liquor getting out and that it was not my liquor," said the speaker, "it always reminds me a man a little to have his name used in a liquor case." Gillette said that two years ago he learned that Scate was responsible for similar rumors. He said that he sent to Representative Woodruff, Michigan, and asked him to have Scate stop circulating them. "There was a fare-up when Scate sought to cross-examine the speaker," Senator Gage heated. "I'm not going to have an employee of this committee cross-examine the speaker of the house," said Senator Hoover, who said that he had not seen the trunk. Soviet Russia and British Bankers

We remarked the other day a change in the tone of the British capitalist press when commenting on the Anglo-Russian negotiations and expressed the opinion that the fact that Soviet representatives had shown no disposition to discuss any trade matters until all political questions had been settled, was largely responsible for the change in tone.

The London Daily Herald furnishes an additional reason. W. F. Coates has issued a pamphlet entitled "Russia's Counter-Claims" which sets forth with great wealth of detail the facts upon which Soviet Russia's damage claim against the government of Great Britain is based. The counter-claims presented by Soviet Russia for injury to property and loss of life during the invasions and counter revolutions engineered and financed by the British government and British capitalists exceed by millions of pounds the British claims arising out of the expropriation of British property owners by the Soviet government. Speaking of the data contained in the Coates pamphlet, the Daily Herald says:

"That Russia has, in international law, a perfectly good and legal case is self-evident. No state of war existed between the Soviet Republic and the British Empire. The action of our Government in sending munitions and men to the aid of the various 'White' generals was a complete violation of its international duty. At the worst it was murder and piracy. At the best it was the giving of armed assistance to one of the parties in a civil war.

The case of the Alabama is conclusive. We then admitted liability to pay damages for mere negligence in allowing a British-built ship to be used for the destruction of Federal commerce. In the Russian case the British government, not by negligence but by overt acts, is directly responsible for greater damage done by British ships, munitions and men.

That fact has got to be honestly faced. For any attempt to evade it could only result in the destruction of the country's moral credit. It is a political act, not a moral one. We must accept the law even when it tells against ourselves.

Mr. Coates' pamphlet—with a preface by the chairman of the Trades Union Congress—does face the facts. And it deserves careful reading, not only by everyone who wants to understand the forthcoming negotiations, but by everyone who wants to realize what vile work was done in the name of this country by the men who were so recently its rulers and who aspire to rule it again.

Just before the negotiations began the MacDonald government was presented with a memorandum signed by London's leading bankers urging it to make no concessions to the Soviet revolution and the British capitalist press applauded loudly. The warning in the Daily Herald is evidently a statement to the financial fraternity that in the matter of dealing on a basis of equality with Soviet Russia and the recognition of the justice of the Russian claims for the murder, rape and rape perpetrated by agents of British capitalism, the laboring wing of the Labor party is going to stand for no nonsense.

Art and The Boss Class

Five hundred workers are on strike in Pullman and the police prevent the showing of Carl Capek's "Robots" in that industrial suburb. It is taxing our credulity a little too much to believe that the policemen themselves had discovered that the picture plays contains a revolutionary message and it follows therefore that the censorship was exercised at the behest of the industrial magnates of that community.

We hear a good deal about the impartiality of art—especially when artists for one reason or another see fit to glorify some phase of the existing system—"Rossum's Universal Robots" is art but it is not impartial; it strikes a great blow at the automatizing process to which the workers are subjected by modern industrial capitalism and no worker can see the play without having at least a spark of hope aroused in his breast.

It was probably a wise thing that the Pullman rulers did, viewing the incident from their stand point, but we want to take this opportunity to point out to our artistic friends who balk some times at the eminently practical character of the Communist movement that the emancipation of the artists of the pen, brush and chisel can be accomplished only by alliance with the working class. The artists are no more free under capitalism than are the wage-earners, as the Pullman incident shows.

A policeman, taking his orders from the master of thousands of wage-slaves, makes no distinction between a great work of art like Capek's play and the heresies of a soap-boiler if his bosses discover that art can engage the grip of the capitalists on the minds of the masses.

The production of Capek's "Robots" was stopped in Pullman Sunday but the process of robotizing the workers there is carried on at full speed.

Perhaps "Hell and Maria" Dawes is favored as running-water for Colidge because they need someone who can talk language the cabinet can understand.

Progressives--Liberals--and Communists

By TOM MATTHEW.

By the wealthy, reactionary American labor movement a leader need not stand far in advance of his fellows to gain a reputation for progressiveness. In fact, to differ from the mass mind is to be considered a fundamental lease stamps a trade union as being progressive.

John Fitzpatrick became an outstanding progressive through his and his implied support of industrial unionism. He is regarded as a progressive even today because of his support in the past for industrial unionism through amalgamation, independent political action, and recognition of Soviet Russia.

Judging by the records of such progressives as these, we may safely say that the progressive gains his reputation by taking a stand more or less in advance of the crowd on certain vital questions affecting the welfare of the labor movement. It is not to be true equally on the political field, where La Follette was renowned for the Republican party, while even Hiram Johnson lays some claim to being a progressive, and the Republican machine to some extent degree.

Words Versus Deeds. Wherein does the progressive trade unionist differ from the Communist trade unionist? John Fitzpatrick became one of the foremost exponents of the idea of independent trade union movement. American trade union movement was not even so far as to cooperate with the Communist movement in calling of a great national convention for the purpose of forming a mass Farmer-Labor party. He was the one who advised, urged, and even with 200 delegates and the formation of such a party because it was a political act, not a moral one. We must accept the law even when it tells against ourselves.

John Brophy collaborated in a program for the nationalization of the coal mines for the consideration of the miners in a most timely manner. It was time came for Brophy to put up a fight he deserted the ship and abandoned the Lewis administration.

While this polemic propaganda of the liberals has a telling effect on the progressives, it is not always the principal cause of traitorous actions. Every leader derives a certain pleasure and personal satisfaction from his "leadership." To John Fitzpatrick which had sunk a knife into his progressiveness. Why? William H. Johnson succeeded in getting together an organization representative of over a million organized workers for "progressive political action" and was himself elected chairman of the organization. We see that organization refusing to move forward to independent political action. The leaders indicated the discredited McAdoo for the presidency of the United States. Why?

Certain liberals claim that such conditions are purely the result of "Communist interference." To liberals who stand off afar and study surface eruptions thru field glasses, such reasoning may seem logical, but to those who actually participate in the broad labor movement, it is nothing more than sheer nonsense.

As a matter of fact, these liberals themselves play a more important role in the position of leadership of the progressives, when such occurs, than we Communists may wish to admit. They would seem strange indeed, if a progressive, about to embark upon some great national undertaking in cooperation with the Communists, should not be affected by the continual warnings and insinuations whispered and open, of the liberals.

Look out for these Communists. They will try to lead the movement too far ahead.

These Communists take all their orders from Moscow. These Russians don't understand the problems you are facing. They will lead you on a blind alley if you don't watch out, etc. etc.

An Arabian Night's Fantasy By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Sheherazade" is a work in a most interesting descriptive of the Arabian Nights was played on the twenty-eighth regular program of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at Orchestra Hall on April 21st. Few composers have written more brilliant Oriental work of the Russian composer. Through all his movements, binding them together, there is a sole descriptive of the life of the Sultana Sheherazade telling her marvelous stories. The first movement describes the sea, and the ship of Sindbad. Undulating rhythms of wave play back and forth across the orchestra, with a heavy stormy figure breaking in at times.

LOOK, WHAT A MAN.

By OSKAR KANEHL.

In the court between hired-barracks. Crammed with warlike slaves. It breathes with arms.

Brilliantness is screaming stone-walls high. They bring a man in work-frock. With kicks and butt-end-blows. At the wall.

"The voice of a boy commands. Crying pull-out. He has turned off the people. The instigator."

Steel-helmets swam around him. Threatening. "He is a robber, a Communist. Their leader."

"Yes, you that?" "Yes, I am." A hired-sold splits amid his face. The horse quails.

"The Spartacist-chiefstain, slay him." And they beat him. That his pale head of a saint is blood-overrunning. He doesn't defend himself. He isn't angry. His is a slow. Between beasts. Look, what a man.

At the wall. Hands up. "Their chivins." "The will divide his clothes." Shots are cracking in the noise. He, at the wall falls ahead on the pavement.

Rankly of achievements the murderer-pact is raising over him away.

In the fourth story on the window wives are weeping. They are weeping. And Magdalen.

MUSIC.

Three excerpts from Wagner's "Parsifal" was Wagner's most successful work of Richard Wagner, a music drama of religious mysticism. It is interesting to note the change in the German composer's genius as he became successful and honored. As a young man he was a close personal friend and disciple of Richard Wagner, and author of the first pamphlet "Art and Revolution," an account of which he was translated from Germany. It was at this time that he wrote the Nibelung cycle, big, vital music, but essentially human, into which Bernhard Shaw reads of elaborate political allegory.

But the successful Wagner, at the end of his life, is not concerned with the mystic and exalted phase of the Christ myth. As a memorial to Charles Villiers Stanford of London, who died three weeks ago, the concert opened with his first Irish symphony. It is a beautiful music, but rather drawn out and tiresome.

The concert of next week will be the last of the season. It will open with the Beethoven third "Leonore" overture, followed by the Brahms fourth symphony, Debussy's Spanish suite, the "Ride of the Valkyries" from Wagner's "Die Walkure" and the same composer's overture to "Tannhauser."

ated, we shall consider it our duty to break the chains of labor in the name of the end all. William H. Johnson regards the presidency of the International Association of Machinists no less highly.

(The same may prove true in the case of La Follette. He is not over-ly anxious to give up the committee chairmanships which fall to his lot as a Republican leader.)

To these gentlemen their positions are something tangible, something which they possess here and now. As expressed it, they fear having to give up these positions to enter "the den of full wild tribes, with whom responsible trade unionists cannot possibly cooperate."

"Responsible trade unionists" cannot cooperate with the Communist according to this liberal for fear they might lose their positions of responsibility and be "kicked out of the American Federation of Labor."

With the proper interpretation placed upon his high-sounding words, the liberal to Communists corrects "practical progressive" prefers his opinion of responsibility in the old position of leadership of the movement in the new, for the former means a regular salary as long as he "beats" the latter way. The latter means that sacrifice which always falls to the lot of the pioneer. It does not mean that he may be "responsible to the Compro" bureaucracy rather than to the rank and file.

But all such progressives we Communists say: "We are only too glad to cooperate with you in any way that will be for the good of the broad labor movement, and so long as you stay true to the cause our assistance can be taken for granted. When however, you should choose to betray the movement we have plenty left.

MENTIONING THE MOVIES

BY THE PRODUCER.

"UNDER THE RED FLM -- NO REVOLV FLM"

This is Hearst's latest venture in the field of the motion picture. The principal character is a down-the-hills nobleman who saves his own neck by joining the revolution. He is played by King who were plotting against King and Cardinal. He backs the job in the name of the revolution. He is in confidence of the conspirators thru their own glibness or by indiscreet public approval of the rebel place of his brother, and proceeding to arrest him on the Cardinal's warrant.

It was along with us and progressives in the future to return to the camp of Reaction, just as they have so circumstantially we followed.

That does not necessarily mean, however, that the progressives are any less nationalistic. It is the broad labor movement at heart—it is literally possible that sooner or later we may realize the enormity of the mistake and again take the lead.

In it our motto is: "We are only too glad to cooperate with you in any way that will be for the good of the broad labor movement, and so long as you stay true to the cause our assistance can be taken for granted. When however, you should choose to betray the movement we have plenty left.
