

WORKERS COUGH NAILS LIES OF PHIL MURRAY

Denounces His Slanders Against Coke Strikers

Vice-President Phil Murray, of the United Mine Workers of America, used the platform at the Illinois Miners' District Convention, now in session, to make false statements against the militant strikers in the non-union coke fields of Western Pennsylvania who were so badly deserted by the International Union in the 1922 strike. In the following article he is answered by Thomas Myerscough, secretary of the Progressive Miners' Congress, one of the leaders of the rank and file strike activities in 1922.

By THOMAS MYERSCOUGH.
(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PEORIA, Ill., May 22.—All miners agree that the strikers were pulled out of the fire in the strike of 1922, because the non-union miners of the country came to our assistance by laying down their tools when we did on April 1st of that year. This is particularly true of the Somerset, Westmoreland and Fayette Counties of Western Pennsylvania.

Yes, in spite of the fact, Philip Murray, international vice-president of the U. M. W. of A., himself a product of the non-union field, undertook to place the blame for the loss of the strike in those fields, on the strikers themselves.

When he did this, Murray knew he was not telling the truth, but he could get away with it because the Illinois miners were far removed from the scene of conflict and he did not familiar with the facts in the case.

Contradicting Murray's Lies.
Being an active member of the U. M. W. of A. in District No. 5 at that time, and being familiar with the entire situation because of my close proximity, I will try to correct the false statements of Murray by giving you the facts.

The coke region miners, who were specifically mentioned in the attack, were, without question, as good a bunch of strikers as any who participated in that memorable struggle. They had actively taken part in the preparatory work, had been April 1st, thereby giving hope to the non-union confident men of the non-union fields. During the progress of the strike and up to the time when the Cleveland Agreement was signed, there was no semblance of a break in the ranks in the coke region.

Let's Remember the Facts.
Representatives of our union at meeting after meeting were telling those men that, because of the Cleveland Agreement, there would be no strike in any field unless the non-union miners agreed. In spite of these promises the International Union signed contracts and settled the strike in the coke region. The coke region miners then began to feel that they were being betrayed and so notified the officials in charge of the strike. They were pacified with the promise of a non-union strike fund and even the miners in local union meetings had decided that the company must sign up for both the non-union and the union. President Lewis stood up with the president himself, with the result that the mine in Somerset county is still a non-union mine.

Strike Refused to Collapse.
It is well known that the miners had been working for some time before the International Executive Board followed an assessment on the membership, and it appears from that fact that Lewis thought that the strike would come from an abrupt end of the coke region themselves. However, things did not turn out that way, and in the month of December, 1922, Lewis sent a committee of national Board members into the coke region to conduct an investigation. This committee, accompanied by the National Board member of District 5, and also by Wm. Foye, the organizer in charge of that field, made an extensive survey of the conditions in that field and recommended that the strike be continued. This information was sent to the International Executive Board.

OF COURSE LABOR REACTION FEARS TO HAVE THE RANK AND FILE READ

This is why the reactionaries get after. The DAILY WORKER not only prints the truth about them, but it also gets on the job and sees that it circulates among the workers and the militants at all conventions. The above article by Thomas Myerscough, secretary of the Progressive Miners' Congress, is a good example of the kind of thing that the DAILY WORKER prints the truth if it never got any circulation. What gets under their hides is that people actually read it and believe in it.

Selling "The Daily."
Reading "The Daily."
Such was the case, for when the information was conveyed to a responsible officer of the United Mine Workers, who is one of the members of the committee, who no doubt thought that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

Car Makers Stop Up.
As for Chicago, it is estimated that the General American Company, manufacturers of freight and passenger cars, had of a considerable number of men some weeks back. The Sinclair Oil Refining Company's plant is operating on a large scale, still decidedly less than a year ago.

It is very difficult to get information concerning the output of the Illinois Steel Company and the Standard Steel Car Company, but one of the best barometers I know is the fact that the Illinois Steel Company has been shut down. This is a large freight transfer house, located at Gibbstown, Pa., where the Illinois Steel and Belt Railway transfers practically all incoming and outgoing freight of the United States. I am informed by a reliable source that the Illinois Steel plant, that transfer of freight has fallen about 25 per cent.

Such was the case, for when the information was conveyed to a responsible officer of the United Mine Workers, who is one of the members of the committee, who no doubt thought that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

When Miners Got Relief.
The Pittsburgh Miner's Relief, referred to by Murray, was the only relief fund that was organized during the strike, and was distributing relief where it was needed most. Only the coke region relief committee, headed by Board member O'Leary, or the officials of District No. 5 made any effort to secure relief. If there were any dual relief movements, there is the coke region, the two last named organizations, these two factions, battling for official supremacy, staged the relief fund. It was the fact of Pittsburgh, over this matter, but failed to reach a satisfactory settlement. Only the coke region relief committee, headed by Board member O'Leary, or the officials of District No. 5 made any effort to secure relief.

Secretary Of Whiskey
In Coolidge Cabinet
Not To Quit Just Yet
WASHINGTON, May 22.—(By The Federated Press.)—Passage of the soldier bonus bill by the Senate, over the veto of the president, will not lead to the resignation of Secretary Mellon or any other member of the cabinet. Before the final vote was taken it became evident that the stock market and banking lobbies were doing their utmost to secure votes to sustain the veto, and Mellon would be considered merely their agent rather than the responsible party in the cabinet.

Russian Clerics Turn Europe.
MOSCOW, May 22.—A delegation of the Synod central organ of the Russian Orthodox Church is leaving for Germany, England and France, with a view to acquaint the foreign clerical circles with the church's position in the Union of Soviet Republics.

GARY MILLS RUN A THREE-FIFTHS FULL CAPACITY

Lack Of Orders Shuts
Out Workers
By H. W. GARNER.
HAMMOND, Ind., May 22.—From work by Gary Mills, one of the largest workers who are walking the streets of Hammond, Ind., there is a search of jobs, there can be no doubt that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

It is very difficult to get information concerning the output of the Illinois Steel Company and the Standard Steel Car Company, but one of the best barometers I know is the fact that the Illinois Steel Company has been shut down. This is a large freight transfer house, located at Gibbstown, Pa., where the Illinois Steel and Belt Railway transfers practically all incoming and outgoing freight of the United States. I am informed by a reliable source that the Illinois Steel plant, that transfer of freight has fallen about 25 per cent.

Such was the case, for when the information was conveyed to a responsible officer of the United Mine Workers, who is one of the members of the committee, who no doubt thought that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

When Miners Got Relief.
The Pittsburgh Miner's Relief, referred to by Murray, was the only relief fund that was organized during the strike, and was distributing relief where it was needed most. Only the coke region relief committee, headed by Board member O'Leary, or the officials of District No. 5 made any effort to secure relief. If there were any dual relief movements, there is the coke region, the two last named organizations, these two factions, battling for official supremacy, staged the relief fund. It was the fact of Pittsburgh, over this matter, but failed to reach a satisfactory settlement.

SOUTH CHICAGO DISTRICTS FEE BUSINESS LAPSE

Unemployment Grows
In Steel Towns
By J. RAMIREZ.
(Special to The Daily Worker.)
GARY, Ind., May 22.—Unemployment here has increased since last year. No longer do carloads of steel leave the plant, but the workers are being laid off. The brief, shabby "prosperity" which Gary knew, is at an end. Unemployment is the big news of the moment.

It is very difficult to get information concerning the output of the Illinois Steel Company and the Standard Steel Car Company, but one of the best barometers I know is the fact that the Illinois Steel Company has been shut down. This is a large freight transfer house, located at Gibbstown, Pa., where the Illinois Steel and Belt Railway transfers practically all incoming and outgoing freight of the United States. I am informed by a reliable source that the Illinois Steel plant, that transfer of freight has fallen about 25 per cent.

Such was the case, for when the information was conveyed to a responsible officer of the United Mine Workers, who is one of the members of the committee, who no doubt thought that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

MINER'S HAIL 6-HOUR DAY

The fight for the six-hour day.
The "Non-Union" Excuse.
"In the fight for a shorter work day to succeed we would have to have all or the major portion of the miners on the strike in order to win. The non-union fields must be organized." Farrisnton said.

It is very difficult to get information concerning the output of the Illinois Steel Company and the Standard Steel Car Company, but one of the best barometers I know is the fact that the Illinois Steel Company has been shut down. This is a large freight transfer house, located at Gibbstown, Pa., where the Illinois Steel and Belt Railway transfers practically all incoming and outgoing freight of the United States. I am informed by a reliable source that the Illinois Steel plant, that transfer of freight has fallen about 25 per cent.

Such was the case, for when the information was conveyed to a responsible officer of the United Mine Workers, who is one of the members of the committee, who no doubt thought that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

When Miners Got Relief.
The Pittsburgh Miner's Relief, referred to by Murray, was the only relief fund that was organized during the strike, and was distributing relief where it was needed most. Only the coke region relief committee, headed by Board member O'Leary, or the officials of District No. 5 made any effort to secure relief. If there were any dual relief movements, there is the coke region, the two last named organizations, these two factions, battling for official supremacy, staged the relief fund. It was the fact of Pittsburgh, over this matter, but failed to reach a satisfactory settlement.

STRIKING GIRLS APPEAL FOELL'S LAST SENTENCE

Judge Gets Tough To
Garment Workers
Three striking garment workers were sentenced to pay fines of $100 each yesterday by Judge Foell. The judge in passing on their appeal said: "If you don't like this country why don't you leave?" He did not give the girls a chance to tell him that a garment workers' wages do not permit of travel. After asking why the girls didn't leave the country he asked if they were "Gits."

It is very difficult to get information concerning the output of the Illinois Steel Company and the Standard Steel Car Company, but one of the best barometers I know is the fact that the Illinois Steel Company has been shut down. This is a large freight transfer house, located at Gibbstown, Pa., where the Illinois Steel and Belt Railway transfers practically all incoming and outgoing freight of the United States. I am informed by a reliable source that the Illinois Steel plant, that transfer of freight has fallen about 25 per cent.

Such was the case, for when the information was conveyed to a responsible officer of the United Mine Workers, who is one of the members of the committee, who no doubt thought that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

When Miners Got Relief.
The Pittsburgh Miner's Relief, referred to by Murray, was the only relief fund that was organized during the strike, and was distributing relief where it was needed most. Only the coke region relief committee, headed by Board member O'Leary, or the officials of District No. 5 made any effort to secure relief. If there were any dual relief movements, there is the coke region, the two last named organizations, these two factions, battling for official supremacy, staged the relief fund. It was the fact of Pittsburgh, over this matter, but failed to reach a satisfactory settlement.

MINERS FIGHT FARRINGTON POLICIES

Debate Miller From Panama suggested that now that the Illinois miners had been attacked, and voted at the press table had been accused of being and he suggested that the Illinois miners should be backed and re-seated at the press table.

It is very difficult to get information concerning the output of the Illinois Steel Company and the Standard Steel Car Company, but one of the best barometers I know is the fact that the Illinois Steel Company has been shut down. This is a large freight transfer house, located at Gibbstown, Pa., where the Illinois Steel and Belt Railway transfers practically all incoming and outgoing freight of the United States. I am informed by a reliable source that the Illinois Steel plant, that transfer of freight has fallen about 25 per cent.

Such was the case, for when the information was conveyed to a responsible officer of the United Mine Workers, who is one of the members of the committee, who no doubt thought that the business is slow up all over the country. Many coal miners are here now, having come to Lake county after the closing down of the mines. Depression has not yet affected the Standard Steel Car Company here to any extent, but the Amper plant of the Keith Railway Equipment Company's session, Lewis called that coal cars, is practically closed down.

When Miners Got Relief.
The Pittsburgh Miner's Relief, referred to by Murray, was the only relief fund that was organized during the strike, and was distributing relief where it was needed most. Only the coke region relief committee, headed by Board member O'Leary, or the officials of District No. 5 made any effort to secure relief. If there were any dual relief movements, there is the coke region, the two last named organizations, these two factions, battling for official supremacy, staged the relief fund. It was the fact of Pittsburgh, over this matter, but failed to reach a satisfactory settlement.

MANUFACTURERS' HEAD ATTACKS CHILD LABOR AND RAIL BILLS

New York, May 22.—The closed shop, and child labor legislation around the fire of John Edgarson, president of the National Manufacturers' Association. In a speech before the House, which is meeting here in convention, he denounced every form of progress as the "road" to the Hell.

MELLON URGES TO SWING VETO ON TAXATION BILL

Washington, May 22.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will recommend to President Coolidge that he veto the tax bill, it was said on his behalf at the treasury department today.

EAST SIDE NEW YORK GROWS HAIRY WHILE 2000 BARBERS STRIKE

New York, May 22.—Most of the city's 20,000 children have been hit by the strike of 2000 barbers. The men, who have been given a 35 per cent increase in wages, are being hit by the strike of 2000 barbers. The men, who have been given a 35 per cent increase in wages, are being hit by the strike of 2000 barbers.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. (Phone) 2-5001

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
$4.00 per year $12.00 a month
$2.00 per year $6.00 a month
$1.00 per year $3.00 a month

Address all mail and make up checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Illinois

J. LOUIS ENGELHILF, Editor
WILLIAM V. DUNNE, Business Manager
MORITZ J. LOEB

Entered as second-class mail Sept. 11, 1921 at St. Paul, Minn., office at Chicago, Ill., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application

120

Taking Morgan's Orders

The victors of the "Socialist bloc" who won the recent elections in France, have been notified by the defeated Poincare that the French people do not rule their own country. With the election over, Herriot and Painleve, leaders of the new majority, have been summoned to the Elysee Palace and told that the real ruler of France is none other than J. Pierpont Morgan, of Wall Street, U. S. A.

The readers of the DAILY WORKER have known this right along. The high sounding phrases uttered by the spokesmen of the French "Socialist bloc" would indicate that they were at least trying to hide this fact, just as the "Socialist" Ebert, in Germany, and the "Socialist" MacDonald, in England, pretend to be men of state who will drive the millions toward Communism and a labor triumph, the victory that is rapidly approaching in Germany, that has already been won in Soviet Russia. Then Morgan's orders will fall on deaf ears.

An Epoch-making Convention

The thirteenth Congress of the Communist Party of Soviet Russia starts Friday. Numerous important questions confront the delegates to this congress of the greatest political party in the world. This is the first convention of the Russian Communist without Lenin. This is the first time the strongest party of the Communist International, all is gathering without the presence of its teacher, theoretician and leader. But despite the fact that Lenin will no longer be present in person at this gathering, the spirit and heritage of the leader of the world proletarian revolution will unquestionably be impressively felt throughout the sessions.

It was under Lenin's leadership that the Russian Communist Party grew to its present strength and international influence. It was the pursuit of the Lenin policies that enabled the Russian Communist Party to win political power in a country inhabited by 120 million people and covering the largest contiguous area within the realms of organization in the world.

The working masses of the world, the exploited and dispossessed farmers of every country, have a vital interest in this convention and its decisions. Not only does the Communist Party shape the policies and destinies of the first Workers' and Farmers' Soviet Republic but it is also the leading section of the Communist International in which are found the most aggressive, class-conscious proletarian and peasant masses of every land.

As Communists, as those who have no interest other than those of the working class, we are especially concerned with the deliberations and actions of this Party of the Russian masses. We have every reason on earth to look forward to this convention proving of as great service to the workers of the world as have all its previous gatherings. Everywhere the class lines are becoming more distinct, everywhere the conflict between the employing class and the working class is taking on increasing intensity, and everywhere the workers and poor farmers will draw inspiring lessons from the congress of the Russian Communist Party which has proved its mettle, weathered the fiercest of storms, and vanquished its enemies on the political, military and economic battlefields of the Northwest.

Harmless Radicals

The overthrow of Poincare in the recent French elections and the probable ascendancy of Herriot have occasioned a flood of talk about a swing to the left in European politics. We do not deny that the outcome of the French and German elections indicates a swing to the left. But in so far as there has been any genuine swing to the left it is to be measured solely by the increased strength of the Communists in both countries.

The experience of the working masses of every country with every stripe of capitalist or middle class progressive has brought out one truth that is unchallengeable. Whether these "radicals" be English, French, German, American or Japanese, once they are charged with the state powers they desert their radicalism, they forget about their progressive promises and they loyally do the bidding

Where Does La Follette Stand?

By IRVING L. ANTON.
America faces a revolution," declared a prominent writer in the United States States. The propaganda has been effective among the workers of the United States and Magnus Johnson was elected.

La Follette is not an elector that he would make a great point of Washington, and that he would, poor as he looked, be elected. Johnson's roaring has all been of pitiful smooth and sweet as it comes from the mouth of Johnson does not think of the revolution any more—although the situation of the farmers has become worse, with no prospect of betterment.

La Follette on the other hand, has been roaring in the Senate for many years. He struck a brilliant note when the "Ragging Don" scandal was brought on the scene. Here he was able to show the republican party was being completely discredited and La Follette could begin to hope that the "Ragging Don" party would be gathered up in a new party with himself as the leader and spokesman.

Both hypotheses are possible. La Follette has had to go to the polls and he has been compelled to take a stand many a time. His record in the past has shown that, at least, he had the backbone of a man with conviction. That was glory enough to carry him along for a long time. His fight against the railway trust has been a noble one, perhaps he believed and still believes that he will be able to persuade the government to take the side of the workers and farmers of the United States who understand the difference between the politics of fighting for control.

Strategy or Stragem?

The reply of the executive secretary of the Socialist Party to the request addressed it by the Workers Party for its severing all relations with the Cleveland Conference for Progressive Political Action and joining hands with the Farmer-Labor Minnesota Convention of June 17th, purports to inform the reader that "while the National Office of the Socialist Party has had indirect information of the St. Paul convention, it has had no official communication whatever respecting it."

"Then the answer goes on to ask whether the Workers Party has the authority to invite our participation, and, if so, is the letter which you have submitted to be considered as a formal invitation?"

The above points indicate the use of the poorest sort of strategy or the resort to unvarnished stratagem by the Socialist Party in negotiations over a question which involves the cardinal interests of millions of workers and farmers. The call of the farmer-labor convention, a call addressed to every labor and farmer organization in the country, is being kept from the widest possible publicity in the public press. In attempting to misrepresent the work of the working and farming masses gave it enemies of the publicly it needs.

The Socialist Party cannot seriously ask us to believe that the call which was sent to many hundreds of labor and farmers' organizations throughout the country did not reach it. Certainly the Socialist Party has had ample opportunity to get the call into the widest possible publicity in the public press. It was the pursuit of the Lenin policies that enabled the Russian Communist Party to win political power in a country inhabited by 120 million people and covering the largest contiguous area within the realms of organization in the world.

The fact of the matter is that the Socialist Party has kept a watchful eye on and has been in strict touch with all the developments culminating in the St. Paul call.

But from here we go to an even worse attempt on the part of the Socialist Party. The question as to the Workers Party having a right to issue invitations to the farmer labor convention is either stretched strategy or that type of stragem so often employed by the high priced corporation lawyers in expensive court litigation.

The Socialist Party has always known that the Workers Party never had and does not have the power to issue such invitations. The Socialist Party has always known that a special committee consisting of the delegated representatives of various labor-farmer groups having a mass following considerably in excess of the its own was the only body authorized to extend such invitations. The inference on the part of the Socialist Party appears to carry with it a rebuke to the St. Paul convention because of the fact that the Workers (Communist) Party will be represented there. It is precisely such arguments that the open-shoppers, the sworn enemies of the working class are making today against the Minnesota Farmer-Labor Movement and against the discontented agrarian masses of the Northwest.

Indeed, the task of Communist-baiting, re-baiting, is not the best task that an organization announcing its working class character, can assume for itself, particularly when the workers are being urged to make an effort should be invested in uniting the workmen and poor farmers into a virile national class farmer-labor party.

Leah had his laugh last winter in Indianapolis. He came back this week with his laugh at Peoria, Illinois. "He who laughs last, laughs best," is an old saying that is very apropos.

Join the Workers Party and subscribe for the DAILY WORKER.

Join the ranks of the liberators in the American Communist movement.

Where Does La Follette Stand?

Though the "Ragging Don" party is not universal among the American working class, the movement is spreading and every attempt to suppress it is bound to fail. It cannot be suppressed for the first election, and the workers of the United States are voting for the winning party at each single election.

The farmer, on the other hand, is up against the capitalist on all sides. He is literally crushed by the trusts and the banks, and every attempt to suppress it is bound to fail. It cannot be suppressed for the first election, and the workers of the United States are voting for the winning party at each single election.

La Follette is not an elector that he would make a great point of Washington, and that he would, poor as he looked, be elected. Johnson's roaring has all been of pitiful smooth and sweet as it comes from the mouth of Johnson does not think of the revolution any more—although the situation of the farmers has become worse, with no prospect of betterment.

La Follette on the other hand, has been roaring in the Senate for many years. He struck a brilliant note when the "Ragging Don" scandal was brought on the scene. Here he was able to show the republican party was being completely discredited and La Follette could begin to hope that the "Ragging Don" party would be gathered up in a new party with himself as the leader and spokesman.

Both hypotheses are possible. La Follette has had to go to the polls and he has been compelled to take a stand many a time. His record in the past has shown that, at least, he had the backbone of a man with conviction. That was glory enough to carry him along for a long time. His fight against the railway trust has been a noble one, perhaps he believed and still believes that he will be able to persuade the government to take the side of the workers and farmers of the United States who understand the difference between the politics of fighting for control.

The workers of the country have a clear idea of the power that confronts them on every side. Although they may not be able to make any synthetic events under a democratic (capitalist) regime and the republican (capitalist) regime and this arrive at the conclusion that the best control of government, hence the whole capitalist regime and system, still for the past five years at least they must believe that the employers, manufacturers and financial magnate have entirely too much control of government. Hence they have begun to think in terms of the social revolution, and less to enumerate the trade unions that have gone on record in favor of the labor party—despite the fact that such expressions of opinion have been systematically sabotaged by the trade union officials. Needless to mention the trade union locals which responded to the referendum of the Trade Union Educational League on the question of a Labor Party, and the great number which nevertheless have opposed the local secretary of the

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

Where Does La Follette Stand?

Though the "Ragging Don" party is not universal among the American working class, the movement is spreading and every attempt to suppress it is bound to fail. It cannot be suppressed for the first election, and the workers of the United States are voting for the winning party at each single election.

The farmer, on the other hand, is up against the capitalist on all sides. He is literally crushed by the trusts and the banks, and every attempt to suppress it is bound to fail. It cannot be suppressed for the first election, and the workers of the United States are voting for the winning party at each single election.

La Follette is not an elector that he would make a great point of Washington, and that he would, poor as he looked, be elected. Johnson's roaring has all been of pitiful smooth and sweet as it comes from the mouth of Johnson does not think of the revolution any more—although the situation of the farmers has become worse, with no prospect of betterment.

La Follette on the other hand, has been roaring in the Senate for many years. He struck a brilliant note when the "Ragging Don" scandal was brought on the scene. Here he was able to show the republican party was being completely discredited and La Follette could begin to hope that the "Ragging Don" party would be gathered up in a new party with himself as the leader and spokesman.

Both hypotheses are possible. La Follette has had to go to the polls and he has been compelled to take a stand many a time. His record in the past has shown that, at least, he had the backbone of a man with conviction. That was glory enough to carry him along for a long time. His fight against the railway trust has been a noble one, perhaps he believed and still believes that he will be able to persuade the government to take the side of the workers and farmers of the United States who understand the difference between the politics of fighting for control.

The workers of the country have a clear idea of the power that confronts them on every side. Although they may not be able to make any synthetic events under a democratic (capitalist) regime and the republican (capitalist) regime and this arrive at the conclusion that the best control of government, hence the whole capitalist regime and system, still for the past five years at least they must believe that the employers, manufacturers and financial magnate have entirely too much control of government. Hence they have begun to think in terms of the social revolution, and less to enumerate the trade unions that have gone on record in favor of the labor party—despite the fact that such expressions of opinion have been systematically sabotaged by the trade union officials. Needless to mention the trade union locals which responded to the referendum of the Trade Union Educational League on the question of a Labor Party, and the great number which nevertheless have opposed the local secretary of the

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

The movement is just taking form. It is impelled by economic motives and by the fact that this is an election year. The workers of the country have not yet felt a great pinch and he feels only the pressure of the law particularly of the injunction, which he tries to evade.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

An English artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: "I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George, which is the best of all the heads of the British Empire. The words of the artist are: 'I have seen a man of such a fine physique as I have never seen before. I visited the Royal Academy in London, where I met an exhibition of the British Empire. The artist painted a portrait of His Majesty King George,