to prevent the bourgeoisie from calling forth a new international pact. What their means are, we know roughly: partial strikes (in munition works), the boycott and general strike...

group of workers in munition factories. Not one of the gentlemen from Amsterdam takes it seriously. They don't believe it themselves. They much rather they possess.

The European news agencies, Havas and Reuter, have fabricated a speech for Comrade Trotsky in which he is alleged to have said that Russia needs Bessarabia in order to annex Constantinople later on.

Trotsky takes observation of Constantinople before annexing it to Russia.

number of strike breakers, etc. These arguments, one must confess, would be without basis. But it is really interesting to see what the English must either be a fool or a scoundrel to assert this.

That the Amsterdam, Sweden, first compels the English workers to pay taxes to cover the needs of the English munition and military works. And then, as soon as the feverish time arrives, when it will be necessary to begin action, those very same English workers will immediately have to go on strike...
